A good builder shows up on time and does what he says he's going to do, for what he said he was going to do it for. Simple as that. Cristiano Silvano of CC Construction, our pin up builder, recently rescued a woman whose £90,000 quote for a flat refurbishment in Pimlico, London, had gone up to £150,000 and rising. "It breaks your heart to see this kind of thing" he says. "A good builder pays enormous amounts of insurance to make sure he (and you) are covered in case things go wrong; which they will."

"What matters is experience, attitude and, to a certain extent, background."

What the client's say

"Chris Edwards is fabulous. He handholds you the whole way. If there's something he can't tackle, he'll get someone else and redo the estimate".

Gerrí Gallagher, associate editor, Tatler Magazine

"Great to work with – stuck to the job until it was finished. Warm, friendly, personable and diplomatic"
